those who regard the invitation as an honor could reasonably object to such a precaution. If the uninvited had remained away last night, the expected could have indulged in quadrilles d'honneur with ease and grace in the corridor and east room. There was one most satisfactory feature about the reception, the very large repre-sentation of the guests of honor—the officers of the army,navy and marine corps. A every turn a uniform added brightness and distinction, and emphasized the fact that the present administration has been an exceedingly popular one with the nation's defenders on land and sea. Brigadier General Wilson, wearing for the first time officially his new uniform and honors, made the presentations to the President, and Lieuteners Cilingrams of the President, and
